BRITISH DRIVE INTO CAEN TO AREA OF DOCKS

Fate Report, Not Yet Confirmed, Says Americans Capture La Haye.

By The Associated Press

HEADQUARTERS EXPEDITIONARY [illegible] 7—British Second [illegible] penetrated today to [illegible] Caen as American [illegible] off in a new attack [illegible] Vire river on the [illegible] of the La Haye Du Puits [illegible]-St. Lo are in a [illegible] the enemy's flank in Normandy.

[illegible] reported its front line correspondent as saying the Americans have "captured and pushed beyond La Haye Du Puits." The report was not immediately confirmed from other sources.)

Allied patrols pushed through German defenses west of Caen at the eastern end of the allied battleline and reached the dock area without encountering any Germans, a report to supreme headquarters said.

However, front line dispatches reported no indication that the Germans were abandoning their long-protested eastern pivot. It was believed the Germans were holding only parts of the town as strongpoints as the result of severe bombings.

Although all but one escape bridge from Caen, a pontoon bridge across the Orne river, had been destroyed, Roger D. Greene, Associated Press war correspondent, said the Germans still were strongly entrenched at Caen.

A field dispatch said the doughboys waded across the stream in the half-light of dawn, established a bridgehead in low marshy country, and then hit the enemy on the flank.

The attack was launched at 4:30 a. m. and American artillery all was pumping shells on German concentrations beyond the stream five hours later.

The new drive, in an area five miles southeast of Carentan, broadened the American offensive front across the base of the Cherbourg peninsula to approximately 25 miles.

The U. S. First army forces of Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley meanwhile scored gains of from one to two miles in their drive to grab La Haye Du Puits, the western anchor of the enemy's Normandy line.

Drive to Canal

Driving south from St. Jores, six miles due east of besieged La Haye Du Puits, American infantry plunged to the La Plessis canal in a two-mile advance while another column captured Le Mesnil, a mile and a half southwest of La Haye. Fighting continued in La Haye itself.

On the Caen front in the east, Canadian troops tightened their grip on Carpiquet, three miles west of the city of Caen. The Germans, however, still held the [illegible] airfield south of Carpiquet and Marshal Erwin Rommel's panzers drove the British out of the eastern edge of Verson, two miles south and slightly west of Carpiquet.

Samaritan Helps Needy Buy Bonds in Times Square

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 7—A Times Square throng of 5,000 was attending a war bond rally last night when a neatly-dressed, middle-aged man climbed on the platform, flashed a thick roll of bills and said he wanted to help purchase bonds. He said he honestly could not afford any, but would not afford any, but he held back skeptically a civilian stepped forward.

"I solemnly swear that I will not perform any bond and that I will buy one, so help me God," asked the master of ceremonies.

The man replied the civilian, who said only $10.

He identified himself as a good samaritan and said he had necessary $8.75. The master money waved a $5 aside, paid $13.75 for a bond.

Returning on the platform in 20 minutes the man bankroll purchased or helped to purchase 51 bonds.

He identified himself by a card read: "William

CIRCUS TENT FIRE DEATH TOLL NOW 152

Show Officials Face Charges; 250 Injured; Many Still Unidentified.

By The Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn., July 7 — The death toll in the greatest fire in circus history topped the 150 mark today, with the majority of victims women and children, as the full, grim unfolding of the catastrophe which destroyed the main tent of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus turned this stunned city into a center of grieving.

Dr. Alfred I. Burgdorf, city health officer, fixed the death toll at 152, while 250 other persons, burned or injured when the big top first burst into flames and then collapsed yesterday, were scattered in three hospitals.

Identification of the dead was slow, and Mayor William Mortensen saying it was likely many of the charred holiday makers would never be known, announced the city probably would be called upon to bury them.

Meanwhile, a variety of investigators pressed an inquiry into the origin of the inferno which quickly changed a gay throng of 6,000 into a panic-stricken, shrieking mass of humanity with only one object in mind—to escape the horror of a fast setting, flaming shroud of fiercely burning canvas from the big top.

As a steady stream of weary relatives sought to give names to the victims, who lay beneath sheets in grim aisles of dead in the huge, sprawling armory, five officials of the circus company were held in high bail, charged with manslaughter.

Discarded Cigaret Blamed

While a quickly mobilized emergency corps went about the poignant task of counting the full cost of the tragedy, believed to have been caused by a carelessly tossed cigaret, eye witnesses piled one detail of horror upon another.

Every one, among them some who had succeeded in cheating death at the scene where all had been laughter and gaiety, seemed to get relief from the shock of the tragedy by relating their experiences.

There was Mrs. Rose Dunn of Hartford, who with her two children counted themselves among the fortunate even though they suffered numerous scratches and burns.

Said Mrs. Dunn, still shocked by the scene:

"I was sitting only a short distance from where the fire broke out. I immediately sensed something was wrong, and even though I was about 10-feet high, tossed my 5-year-old son Herbert

THE PHOTOGRAPH ABOVE pictures a scene outside the main tent of the circus following the fire, showing bodies of a few of the victims lined up for removal to the morgue.

EIGHT NOW DEAD IN OIL CITY EXPLOSION

By The Associated Press

OIL CITY, Pa., July 7—The death toll in a series of explosions and fire that swept a unit of the Defense Plant Corporation's one-hundred octane aviation gasoline plant near here rose to eight today.

Eight others were in hospitals, three in critical condition, from injuries and burns suffered as flames swept the building after the first explosion occurred while a valve was being repaired in the gas concentration system.

Some employes, their clothing aflame, leaped from windows.

The plant, constructed at an estimated cost of $5,000,000, had been in operation less than two months.

Officials of the four commercial companies jointly operating the plant—Pennzoil Co., Continental Refining Co., Quaker State Oil Refining Corp., and Wolf's Head Oil Refining Co.—said they were unable to determine the exact cause of the explosions.

SEEK TO EXCHANGE PRISONERS WITH JAPS

WASHINGTON, July 7—Repatriation of sick and wounded Americans held prisoners of war by Japan is under discussion with Tokyo, Senator Thomas, Democrat of Utah, disclosed today. The discussions—without result as yet—are being conducted through the Swiss government.

Japan has refused thus far to repatriate military prisoners or any of the non-military construction workers captured on Guam and Wake, said Thomas, chairman of a senate foreign relations subcommittee.

Quoting a letter from Secretary of State Hull, Thomas told a reporter 19,919 American prisoners of war were held by Japan on May 25 and on May 23 there were 5,543 civilians held by the Tokyo government according to reports from representatives of the Swiss government and the international Red Cross.

Some progress has been made in furnishing food, medical supplies and clothing for the imprisoned Americans, Thomas said. About 5,000 tons of supplies have been sent in the exchange ships and information has been received that it was probably delivered.

Father Sentenced To Die In Chair for Electrocution of Son

By The Associated Press

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 7—John F. Noxon Jr., 47-year-old lawyer, was sentenced today to death in the electric chair for the electrocution slaying last Sept. 22 of his six-months-old mentally deficient son, Lawrence.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Abraham E. Pinanski after Noxon, availing himself of the privilege of addressing the court, said:

"I want to repeat again, what I said during the trial, that I did not kill my son. I'm innocent of this terrible charge."

Calmly and stolidly, Noxon stood in the prisoners' cage and heard Judge Pinanski sentence him to die "by the passage of a current of electricity through your body at a time and place provided by law."

A Berkshire county jury, which had sat through five weeks of trial, deliberated less than five hours before deciding that the prominent attorney had taken his child's life Sept. 22, "with deliberate premeditation and malice aforethought."

In Massachusetts, the death penalty is mandatory for first degree murder.

It was expected that defense counsel would enter an appeal. In such an event the court could impose sentence and at the same time stay its execution pending the outcome of the appeal before the supreme court.

Tall, bald-headed Noxon, who is a veteran of World war I and a victim of infantile paralysis which has forced him to use two heavy canes for the past 20 years, steadfastly maintained that his son, Lawrence, met death accidentally by becoming entangled in a trouble light cord which Noxon said he was using to put tubes in the family radio.

The baby met death a few weeks after child specialists had informed the Noxon's that the baby was a "mongoloid type."

B-29's Again Blast Japan

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 7—Super Fortresses of the U. S. 20th airforce bombed the Japanese naval base of Sasebo and the steel center of Yawata on the island of Kyushu Friday night in the second attack by the huge B-29's on the Japanese mainland.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the air forces, announced the assault in a communique at Washington. It was the third time since Pearl Harbor that American planes have rained bombs on Japan proper.

Sasebo, comparable to the U. S. naval establishments at Norfolk, Va., or Bremerton, Wash., was hit for the first time since the start of the war. It lies to the west of Yawata, which was the target of the first B-29 Super Fortress attack on the Japanese home islands on June 15.

Arnold, who also is commanding general of the 20th air force which operates directly under the joint chiefs of staff, issued this communique:

"Headquarters 20th air force. Communique No. three: B-29 Super Fortresses of the 20th bomber command attacked naval installations at Sasebo, Japan, tonight.

"Bombs were dropped also on target of the Super Fortresses' industrial objectives at Yawata, June 15 assault on Japan.

'Both cities are on the island of Kyushu."

No additional information was available immediately.

Sasebo is on the island of Kyushu, west of the steel center of Yawata, which was struck June 15 by the B-29 Super Fort-

NAZIS REPORT REDS 10 MILES FROM WILNO

Germans Decree Martial Law; Russians Reach Bug River, Warsaw Barrier.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 7—German reports said the Russians were advancing today within ten miles of Wilno, where Moscow reported the Nazis had declared martial law.

Smashing beyond the old Polish bastion of Kowel, the Russians were approaching the Bug river at a point about 135 miles southeast of Warsaw along the main trunk line. Virtually all the pre-war Polish frontier was crossed save for a section before Lunmiec in the Pripyat marshes.

Wilno, city of 207,750 which has changed nationality six times since the last war, lies but 97 miles from the border of East Prussia and is a rail and highway center. A Moscow dispatch quoted Yustas Paleiskis, chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet of Lithuania, as saying the German martial law edict barred persons from the streets between 8 p. m. and 5 a. m. and forbade walking in groups greater than two.

While at least four Russian army groups pushed westward, other Soviet forces mopped up bewildered German stragglers east of Minsk, leagues behind the main front. Moscow said 5,000 were killed last night. The midnight communique listed at least 9,000 Germans killed in all and nearly 1,000 captured.

Reds Drive Forward on 350-Mile Front

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 7—The Red army surged forward today on a 350-mile front into the very heart of Hitler's eastern lines, eclipsing positions 20 miles from the Lithuanian border in the north and approaching the western Bug river, first barrier to Warsaw, in the south.

Speeding though the lake country between Minsk and the Soviet baltic republics, cavalry and tanks of Gen. Ivan Cherinlakhovsky's and Gen. Ivan Bagramian's armies captured settlements and villages west of Lakes Syth and Naroch, which put them within striking distance of Lithuania.

In one place west of captured Mikhailishki the Red army forces were 18 miles from the Warsaw-Leningrad railway—a place between Daugavpils (Dvinsk) and Wilno (Vilna).

(The Berlin radio said Soviet forces were within 10 miles of Wilno.)

The Russians brought the war to the front door capital of Lithuania by capturing positions west of the river Villya in the direction of Mikhailishki, 31 miles northeast of the city, which with Kaunas, just 50 miles west of Wilno, form the core of Balkan communications.

Should the Russian army carry its push into this sector, the entire German position in the Soviet Baltic republics would be threatened. Just west of Wilno runs the Baltics' main railway—the line which the German high command must use to hold Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

The Russians do not have merely isolated units pressing upon Wilno, for their forward wall is 20 miles long between Mikhailishki and Soli to its south.

Antique Collection Taken in Burglary

Mrs. Florence Windhurst of 179½ West Center street reported to police yesterday morning that her third floor apartment had been entered and ransacked and a collection of antiques, value of which could not be determined, taken. Police investigated and found the burglar had entered by using a key.

Among the items stolen were: a collection of some 200 old stamps, 3 cheap watches, a small purse containing 10 old silver dollars and three or four Columbian half-dollars, box of old coins, box of old beads and broaches and two pair of glasses valued at $15 each. A pearl handled revolver was also taken.

Train Plunges To Riverbed in Tennessee

By The Associated Press

JELLICO, Tenn., July 7 — At least 17 persons, all but two of them soldiers, were killed last night when a troop train plunged into a 50-foot gorge of the Cheat river 11 miles south of here. Dr. E. P. Money, resident physician of Knoxville's general hospital, said the death toll probably would exceed 40.

The locomotive and four cars were piled at the ravine's bottom, and a fifth hung over the precipitous edge, where it left the Louisville and Nashville railroad tracks.

One soldier, identified by army public relations as Pvt. Leonard Battag of Evanston, Ill., was still pinned in the bottom of a wrecked car 12 hours after the crash, with four dead men piled on him. He regained consciousness and talked with rescuers as acetylene torches cut through twisted steel nearby.

Many Are Injured

Work of extricating the victims from the locomotive and five cars which tumbled down the steep 50-foot bank to the shallow stream was slow, and unofficial estimates placed the casualties as high as 25 dead and 250 hurt.

The train was a special carrying only soldiers and the train crew.

An emergency train made up from the 12 cars which did not leave the track left this morning taking 50 of the injured to Lake City, Tenn., enroute to the government hospital at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and at least 30 other injured service men were sent to Oak Ridge hospital in ambulances.

State guard Company C from Knoxville, commanded by Captain Ben Sanders, joined military police in patrolling the wreck scene this morning as acetylene torches were used to cut away portions of the cars and slings and pulleys

MINE RESCUE WORK RUSHED

Skilled Crews Prepare To Start Drilling Hole Into Workings.

By The Associated Press

BELLAIRE, O., July 7—A huge drilling outfit was set up on a hill along the Ohio river today to bore 350 feet into the Powhatan mine where 86 men were trapped by flaming coal late Wednesday.

Sinking of the nine-inch shaft, only way to determine whether all the miners were dead, was expected to begin shortly after noon. Officials estimated it would take at least two days to reach a tunnel in which the men fled as fire raced through the main shaft of the big mine.

Officials of Powhatan announced today that a recheck had disclosed two more miners than previously known apparently were caught in the disaster. They were Clem M. Wingrove, 39, of Cappina, W. Va., and Charles Brown, 32, of Powhatan Point. They worked an extra shift and thus were not included in the original count that placed the number of trapped men at 84.

Two high-speed drills, one three inches in diameter, the other nine inches, were being brought here to sink shafts through which food and water could be lowered to the coal miners if they are alive.

The men were trapped in a dead-end corridor Wednesday when a rock fall broke a trolley line and started a blaze that cut them off from escape through the main shaft.

The mine was sealed to smother the fire which raged out of control as rescue workers sought to reach the imprisoned men. No word has been received from the

JAPS SMASHED BACK IN 25 MILE RETREAT

End of Fighting Appears Near on Saipan with Foe Caught in Small Area.

By The Associated Press

China crowned seven hard years of war today with a smashing victory which broke the siege of Hengyang and threw into a 25-mile retreat a great Japanese army menacing the Hankow-Canton railway.

The victory, scored with the aid of reinforcements moving up from the southwest, has "removed for some time to come" the Japanese threat to occupy the whole of that vital rail line and cut China in two, the spokesman said.

Announcement of the sudden success came as China entered the Eighth year of her war with the Japanese invaders, confident that with the help of the United Nations she eventually would drive the enemy from her soil.

"Liberation is close at hand," declared Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, China's president.

The army spokesman said that only scattered Japanese remnants which are being surrounded and wiped out now remain south of Leiyang, railway town 34 miles southeast of Hengyang. Leiyang itself, he added, is firmly in Chinese hands.

Japs Retreat Northward

The main force of Japanese is retreating in a northeasterly direction, the spokesman asserted, and the enemy column which has been driving northward from the Canton area has been stalled completely.

This sudden, stunning blow to Japanese arms made the Pacific war news unanimously unpleasant for Tokyo, which also had to reckon with the imminent Bataan-like end of its troops on Saipan and a new island invasion in the southwest Pacific. And a Japanese general conceded defeat in the attempt to invade India.

The sudden turn in fortune thwarted "for some time to come," Chungking said, the all-out Japanese drive to cleave China along the 1,000-mile railroad from Canton north to Peiping. Along this line the Nipponese hoped to construct a barrier which would stand against Allied forces converging on coastal China from the west and east.

Hengyang is a key junction on the rail line, some 300 miles north of Canton. It had been besieged for days and its stubborn garrison killed at least 6,000 men assaulting it from all sides. With supplies dropped from U. S. bombers the Chinese held on until the relieving armies made the victorious strikes announced today.

On Saipan 10 to 15 thousand civilians pinned on the island's northern tip with doomed Japanese troops were offered sanctuary by U. S. commanders. A road was designated for their entry into American lines, and food, water and safety were promised. But for the troops, evidently spurning surrender, death awaited. American Marines and Infantry closed in on the pocket. AP Correspondent Rembert James

U. S. and Britain Building Firepower 4 Times Greater Than Enemy's

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 9 — The Allies are building up their air power to a point where it will be four times greater than that of the Germans and Japanese, the Office of War Information said today.

Elmer Davis, OWI director, told a press conference that the Allies are not only producing more planes than the Axis but also are building bigger and better ones.

Davis said that in the first six months of 1943 the United States and Britain produced 48,000 planes, while Germany and Japan produced 23,000.

"Our production is going up and theirs is going down," he said.

Davis declined to say whether the Allies have established air superiority over Europe, but he said that the Allies are "getting more and more" planes over Germany.

WALLACE FATE IN BALANCE

Hannegan To Learn If Roosevelt Wants Him on Ticket Again.

By The Associated Press

Democratic political maneuvering reached a pre-convention peak today with National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan coming from Chicago to Washington presumably to find out just how strongly President Roosevelt wants to see Henry A. Wallace again in second place on the party ticket.

One major task is out of the way—the selection of a chairman of the platform-making resolutions committee. The national committee announced at Washington yesterday that House Leader John McCormack of Massachusetts had been picked for that important position. That action places a down - the - line-for-Roosevelt man in a key position to translate presidential preferences into party planks.

With the Democrats thus busy, the news from the Republicans was highlighted by a prediction from Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan that nominee Thomas E. Dewey would get more than 300 electoral votes for president in November. Only 266 are needed.

Vandenberg, visiting Dewey at Albany, N. Y., to talk over issues, said the situation in the middle west is excellent from the Republican standpoint.

Dewey's running mate, Gov. Bricker of Ohio, said he would discuss campaign plans with Dewey after about a week. Bricker is off to Canada for a vacation.

Convinced that the President will be nominated for a fourth term, most Democrats agree that the platform to be submitted to the convention, which opens in Chicago July 19, will be tailored to fit his wishes.

Democrats Warned Fight Will Be Hard

COLUMBUS, O., July 7—Robert E. Hannegan, the Democratic party's new national chairman, last night advised Ohio party leaders to avoid over-optimism about the outcome of the November election.

"Don't lean back," he told a belated Jackson day dinner gathering, "and expect a voice on the radio to win the election."

Urging all party leaders to carry on a vigorous campaign, he cautioned them against undue criticism of the opposition.

"I pledge that as far as I am concerned this will be a campaign not for the party but for the country," he declared. "We can not hope to match the financing and organization of the opposition party, but we can match them in zeal and energy in the coming campaign."

The Republican party, Hannegan asserted, is playing "weather vane" politics, while the Democratic party is "one a fixed course to victory and peace, as charted by the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The new national chairman expressed confidence that "Roosevelt is going to be the nominee and that we are going to win."

Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, the party's nominee for governor, urged a campaign minus the customary "mud slinging."

The Republican party, he said, is "prepared to malign and vilify the greatest leader in the world today—Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Asserting that "we can not stoop to malice even though at the minute it might serve our purpose," Lausche said defeat was better than victory won by such methods.

BOARD TRANSACTS SCHOOL BUSINESS

Galion Teacher, Librarian Resign Posts.

Special to The Star

GALION, July 7—Two resignations were received by the Galion board of education at the July meeting, Thursday night, and only one of the vacancies filled.

The board received the official resignation of Miss Florence Willford, a veteran teacher who had spent 20 of her 38 years of teaching in the Galion schools. She was an elementary teacher at the East school and last year did not teach because of ill health. She had been given a leave of absence, until the board received her resignation Thursday night. Her home is in New Washington, and she had taught her 38 years in Crawford county.

Mrs. Frieda Hartman who has been librarian at Junior and Senior High for a year and a half, also resigned to go with her family to live at Xenia, O. Her husband and daughter recently returned as missionaries to China.

The librarian vacancy was filled with the employment of Miss Hilda Miller, a retired teacher. Miss Miller had retired in 1941 after teaching 24 years in the Galion schools, and she had several years of experience in the high school library before her retirement.

Action was taken by the board to pay teachers and other employes once a month instead of semi-monthly. This is necessary because of the time it requires to make out the payroll and because of a shortage of secretaries in the superintendent's office.

Clerk Isabel Monroe reported a bank balance in the general fund of $10,891, and bond fund of $19,011.

M. A. Povenmire, superintendent of schools, told of the workshop he attended at Miami university recently.

The average daily attendance in the Galion schools last year was 1520 as compared with 1568 for the year before.

Former Associates in Marion Store Meet in England

A reunion somewhere in England was the happy experience of three Marion men who, in civilian life, worked together in the Store of Quality department of the Frank Bros. Co. store. They are Pfc. Ira B. Frost of the Army Air Corps, Staff Sgt. Harry W. Fackler, and Paratrooper Clyde Wilson. Details of the reunion were first given by Sgt. Frost in a letter to his mother, Mrs. Clyde Frost of 1203 East Center street. Sgt. McFarland lives on Mary street and Paratrooper Wilson on North Prospect street.

According to present details, Sgt. Frost unexpectedly met Staff Sgt. McFarland on the street and, not knowing as to what he was doing there, learned that he was to meet Paratrooper Wilson. Frost has been a soldier for the last one and one-half years and his former associates have been with the armed forces for a slightly longer period.

Public's Estimate of War's Length Reflects More Optimism, Poll Shows

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 1—The startling upturn of optimism that has run through most of General MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz' areas seem to have been a bulwark for a survey just completed by the Institute and it is that the American public's estimate about the length of the war has taken a sharply optimistic turn in recent weeks.

Whereas the average estimate at the end of March was that the fighting in Europe would continue well into 1945, today the public's estimate is that Germany will be beaten and the European war brought to an end within six months.

There is increasing confidence too of an early victory over Japan. The average guess is that Hirohito and his militarists will be out of the war by the end of 1945—a year and a half from now. Only about one person in ten thinks the Japanese war will still be going in 1946.

Attitudes toward the length of the war have been measured at regular intervals by the Institute in surveys on the following question:

"How much longer do you think the war with Germany will last? How much longer do you think the war with Japan will last?"

The last test, in March, came at a time when American and British troops were making comparatively slow progress in Italy. Today's new poll reflects the fall of Rome, the success of the Normandy invasion, the steady advance of the Russians toward Minsk, and the Superfortress bombing raid of Japan.

Public's Guess on Length of War With Germany

In 1944	36%	38%
First half of 1945	28	39
Second half 1945	3	7
In 1946 or later	5	14
Unwilling to guess	4	7
	Today	Last March

Attitudes toward the war against Japan are shown below.

War With Japan

	Today	Last March
In 1944	14%	6%
In 1945	43	33
In 1946	21	32
In 1947 or later	11	21
Unwilling to guess	5	8

The medium average of estimates on the length of the Japanese war is one and one-half years, or two years, six months.

62 PRIESTS, NUNS KILLED BY PLANES

CHICAGO, July 1—A strafing attack by American Mitchell bombers on a Japanese internment boat off the coast of New Guinea last Feb. 6 killed a bishop and 63 Catholic priests, brothers and nuns, it was disclosed last night by Rev. Anthony May, mission procurator of the monastery of the Society of the Divine Word in suburban Techny.

Father May's announcement said the Japanese denied the frantic pleas of the nuns to signal off the American planes, but he said "by good fortune the pilots noted the nuns' habits and did not return for a second strafing run."

He said there were 146 missionaries in the group being transported up the coast in the boat and those killed included the Most Rev. Bishop Francis Wolf, S.V.D., eight priests, 18 brothers, all of the society, and 36 nuns of the Sisters Servants of the Holy Ghost, whose United States headquarters also are at Techny.

In a statement, Father May said the survivors of the tragedy, "many of them wounded or suffering from malaria, dysentery and other diseases, deprived of proper medical care, suffered indescribable hardships in the weeks between the strafing and their unexpected liberation when Gen. MacArthur's forces took Hollandia late in April. The surviving 27 priests, 39 brothers, and 26 sisters reached Brisbane, Australia, late in May, some on stretchers."

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The men overseas don't mince any words about the way they want to find this country when they come marching home... do they, Judge?"

"They certainly don't, Herb...and they shouldn't. They're doing a masterful job fighting over there to protect our rights and they have good license to expect us to protect theirs back here at home. One thing they're mighty clear on is their stand on prohibition."

"Their position on that subject was stated very emphatically in a poll taken recently among American service men in England by the British Institute of Public Opinion. When hundreds of men were asked point blank how they would vote on prohibition, 85% of them stated, in unmistakable terms, that they would vote against it. There's no doubt about it, Herb... the men overseas don't want any action taken on that subject while they're away."

"And they're 100% right, Judge, because I know how I felt when I came home after the last war—only to learn that we had been over there fighting for so impractical a thing as Prohibition."

Scores of soldiers from a nearby Army rest camp, sent to the circus for relaxation, forgot their own injuries, suffered in action overseas, to aid in numerous rescues.

As an aftermath to the disaster, state police acting under orders of Commissioner Edward J. Hickey, today ordered a carnival which has been showing at Waterford to close under threat of prosecution if it continued to operate with its present tents. These tents, the commissioner said, had been waterproofed in the same manner as the Barnum and Bailey main tent. "This type of waterproofing has proved highly inflammable," Hickey said, "the state police department will not tolerate its use in Connecticut."

The five circus officials arrested on the manslaughter charge were:

J. A. Haley, vice president; George W. Smith, general manager; Leonard Aylesworth, boss canvas man; Edward Versteig, chief electrician and David Blanchfield, chief wagon man.

After having been detained throughout the night at police headquarters Haley and Smith were held in $15,000 bail and the others in $10,000 for a hearing July 18.

Seek To Find Cause

Meanwhile investigators seeking to establish a reason for the startlingly rapid spread of the blaze which all eye-witnesses agreed mushroomed with incredible speed from a tiny finger of flame near the main entrance to a gigantic inferno of smoke and fire.

Police Prosecutor James F. Kennedy announced that his preliminary investigation had established that the huge canvas tent had been coated with a waterproof solution of gasoline and paraffin before the circus left its winter quarters at Sarasota, Fla., early in the year.

Many witnesses to the appalling scene commented upon the thick, oily nature of the billowing flames and smoke.

Hal Oliver, circus press representative, declared that "absolutely no credence was being given any theory of incendiarism or sabotage."

The fire, the greatest disaster in American circus history, reduced the show's main tent to ashes within less than an hour yesterday and brought injury to at least 225 of the estimated 6,000 spectators.

State police estimated two-thirds of the dead were children and said most of the adult victims were women.

View Victims in Morgue

A chilling quiet prevailed at the morgue, broken only occasionally by the sudden sob of a mother recognizing some wisp of her child's clothing on a twisted and blackened figure.

Cause of the blaze remained undetermined today, but an investigation was started immediately under the governor's direction.

Warrants charging four circus officials with manslaughter were issued last night by Police Court Prosecutor S. Burr Leikind, who said other arrests might be made today.

Only the first act, the performance of the trained animals, had been completed when the blaze, at first so small that, as one witness said, it could have been extinguished with a bucket of water, was seen near the main entrance of the big top.

The first move toward the exits was orderly and many of the children making their way from the tiers of seats were seen laughing excitedly.

But when the flames roared with terrifying speed to consume the entire canvas body, the audience became a fighting, screaming, terror-stricken mass.

The performing animals had been safely herded through the caged runway back to their trucks when the blaze was first seen. It was the runway, spectators said, which trapped many of the audience under the fiery canvas as it fell.

Clown Describes Scene

The scene was described by Felix Adler, the show's famous clown, as the most horrible ever witnessed by a circus performer.

"We heard a roar like applause," Adler said, describing what happened in the performer's dressing room. "Only we knew the animal act was over and there shouldn't be applause. We knew then something was wrong. Then we smelled smoke. . . . I thought the menagerie fire in Cleveland (in August, 1942, which injured three circus employes and killed 40 animals) was the worst thing I could ever see, but no one in the circus business has ever seen anything as horrible as this."

Herbert Duval, circus adjuster, declared, "we're out of business." But Roland Butler, general press representative, predicted that the show would return to the road later this summer.

Butler reported all the show's animals were saved and none of the performers had been injured seriously.

Estimates of the fire loss ranged from $75,000 to $500,000.

PAUSE BEFORE CHERBOURG. On their way to Cherbourg, a group of American soldiers stop their big truck to chat with French nuns in the village of Briquebec. The scene is often repeated as the Allied liberators and the French populace meet after years of Nazi occupation and oppression.

B-29'S

resses in the first air attack on the Japanese islands since medium bombers under Lt. Col. James H. Doolittle were launched from the aircraft carrier Hornet to hit Tokyo and other Japanese cities on April 18, 1942.

The target of today's attack, which occured on the seventh anniversary of Japan's initiation of the war with China, lies just north of the great Japanese port of Nagasaki.

The attack on Yawata, also by Super Fortresses of the 20th bomber command based in China, occurred in the pre-dawn hours of June 15.

The return of the B-29's to Yawata after a three-week interval follows the pattern of strategic bombing set in the European operations—an initial attack, with an interval during which the enemy attempts repairs, then a new attack to smash the repairs and keep the munitions-producing factory out of full operation.

It is presumed that at least in the initial attack on Yawata the American bombardiers gave particular attention to hitting the coke-making plants at the steel mills. The coke units, chiefly of brick construction, are easily smashed by bomb concussion. And without coke, the steel mills themselves cannot function.

Sasebo is one of the four main home bases of the Japanese navy, the others being Yokosuka, Kure and Maizuru on the main island, Honshu. The base includes one of the most productive shipbuilding yards at the disposal of the navy, turning out a large proportion of its submarines, destroyers and other smaller warcraft.

Since the outbreak of the war with China in 1937 Sasebo probably has been the busiest of all the Japanese bases, since most of the warcraft used in China waters and further south have been fitted out and repaired there.

Debate Coach Resigns Marysville School Post

MARYSVILLE, July 7—George Ager, one of Ohio's most noted debate coaches whose teams have won four state class B championships since 1932, has resigned as principal of Marysville Junior High school. He has accepted a position with the War Manpower Commission at Columbus.

Ager, athletic coach, who relinquished active coaching duties a year ago, has been selected to succeed Mr. Ager as junior high principal.

The Marysville board of education has decided to ask for a two mill extra levy at the November election to aid in financing increased salaries and other advanced costs of operating the schools. Voters passed a two mill extra levy for five years at the election two years ago.

Boomlet

IN THE light of the fact that the only political [illegible] is the report that the Democrats might do something about Henry A. Wallace at their convention, the well-worn boomlet for Henry J. Kaiser is refreshing.

For a matter of a few days, it will be necessary to think of the possibilities of Mr. Kaiser in a national election. He might bring his managerial genius to bear with some startling result. But alas, it can be no more than a thought.

These boomlets come and go and rarely have any consequences. When the time actually comes for Democratic delegates to decide whether or not they will vote for the candidate they are going to be given, look for Mr. Wallace again. An electorate which is going to be urged to lay in the middle of the New Deal stream hardly could be urged to send ashore for one new horse without giving it ideas about two new horses and a chance to get out of the stream.

Resistance at the Bug

THERE is less likelihood of German resistance on the Bug river line in central Poland than there was on the other Bug river line in the western Ukraine last year. If the herrenvolk's harassed generals couldn't prepare a defense then, they stand a smaller chance of preparing one now. This is not the same Bug river, but it is the same war.

The speed of the Russian offensive promises to carry it in a few more days to the first German soil reached in World war II—East Prussia. It was the Polish Corridor separating East Prussia from Germany which was used as the nominal excuse for the attack on Poland almost five years ago now. It is not beyond the realm of possibility that by Sept. 1, anniversary of the attack on Poland, that country will be in Russia's control. On Aug. 21 will occur another anniversary—the fifth anniversary of the announcement of the non-aggression agreement between Germany and Russia. It was to prove to be the crowning act of the cynicism which marked the end of the feeble hope of peace which had survived the previous machinations and bad faith of statesmen. The pact was signed in Moscow on Aug. 24 and bound the signatories to refrain from any act of force against each other and also to refrain from supporting warlike acts against either by third parties. The two countries which lunged at Poland in 1939 and now are lunging at each other might well pause a few moments at the Bug river line to commemorate the changes five years have made in their situations.

The New Hitler

THE NEW Hitler emerging from the circumstances of Germany's distress does not talk about what is going to happen to Frenchmen, Jews, Russians, or the English. He does not speak of the decadence of the United States or the reprisals he will turn loose against Germany's enemies.

He speaks of Germany's sorrows and the necessity of finding hitherto unheard of strength, nerves and determination to withstand its trials. He promises his countrymen they will not surrender and urges them to be as brave as their soldiers at the front.

This is not the boasting Hitler. This is a Hitler who must stand before his disillusioned countrymen and tell them they are getting licked; who must urge them to fight to the last man. This is not the fuehrer organizing a German empire, but the politician presiding at the collapse of an unsuccessful war. The indomitable leader has nothing to offer now but national ruin.

The war is not over, but the German people are closer to acknowledged defeat than they ever were in World war I, which ended under circumstances that left most of them convinced they should have won. There could be nothing better done with Hitler when Germany has lost the war, if he can be captured alive, than to make him tell his own people day after day that he led them into defeat.

Delicate Mission

GEN. CHARLES DE GAULLE'S visit in Washington is fraught with great consequences—not all of them French. The leader of the French National committee has come to typify something that stirs deep doubts about the credo of internationalism—doubts which themselves are international.

In the United States, they are doubts of the propriety of Gen. de Gaulle's demand for favor and of the propriety of the clamor in his behalf raised in this country. These things have little or nothing to do with the grim business which is swelling the casualty lists in the European theater of war, yet to hear the partisans speak of them American men are dying and being hurt in France chiefly to further certain vaguely defined and widely misunderstood French political ambitions.

Gen. de Gaulle has a great opportunity to put over the idea belatedly that he wants nothing from the American war efforts in France but a chance to serve the French people, if and when they ask for his help.

Slang is a conventional tongue with many dialects, which are as a rule unintelligible to outsiders.—Albert Barrere, 1889.

Talking About Billions

Nations Seek To Avoid Financial Throat Cutting After War.

By SIGRID ARNE
Associated Press Writer

REPRESENTATIVES of forty-[illegible] at Bretton Woods, N. H., to prepare [illegible] for world peace.

[illegible] Nation [illegible] Britain [illegible] keep [illegible] at [illegible] Army [illegible] General [illegible] Morgenthau [illegible] General Motors [illegible] former [illegible] for [illegible] Lend-Lease.

Under tentative plans approved by spokesmen of money experts, it would cost the United States about $2,000,000,000. The experts want a grand total of eight billion to [illegible] 10 billion of the Axis [illegible] be put.

The fund will not make loans for reconstruction. It will trade in [illegible] one kind [illegible] various currencies of the world.

Thus, an American company selling $100,000 worth of [illegible] would receive [illegible] payment in dollars [illegible] can't spend [illegible] another country.

So the English purchaser goes to a bank and "buys" dollars to pay the bill. He draws [illegible] checks on them off in a pile and mail them to the United States. The bank credits the American concern, which can either trade the dollars for goods to buy in England, or can ask payment. If it wants payment the English bank transfers the $100,000 credit to an American bank.

But the pound might be worth $4.40 when the American concern took the order and slip to $4.35 by payment date. So the English buyer has to spend more pounds to get $100,000 in dollars and that might cancel half his expected profit.

THAT gold hoard at Fort Knox is part of the picture. It's worth some 21 billion dollars. It could be worth nothing if gold ceased to be a money base. This is why:

In a week there may be 1,000 deals between the United States and England in normal trading times. At the end of the year the deals won't be quite even.

Suppose the English bought $400,000 worth more here than we bought there. They would ship $100,000 worth of gold to settle the accounts.

That happened so much in the 20's and 30's that we cornered the world's gold.

The countries losing gold to us had to "cheapen" their money—give it a lower value in relation to the dollar. Francs worth 20 cents slipped to 10. Pounds worth $4.89 dropped below $4.

That made it easier for us to buy abroad, because dollars bought more pounds and francs with which to buy merchandise.

Nations kept shipping gold to us because we continued to sell more abroad than we bought. Their monies continued to slip in value. It finally became too expensive for them to buy here. They went without, or bought from each other, and the bread [illegible] began to form to the east. [illegible] the real frenzy began. Germany was the villain. Germany [illegible] way to Bulgaria, for [illegible] "We'll take your wheat but you have to spend the money in Germany." Perhaps Bulgaria wanted American wheat, but its money was "cheapened" in Germany.

Then Germany invested another twist. "If you buy canaries your money will be worth twice as many pfennmarks as though you'd spent it in Germany." In that way, Germany [illegible] basket deposits, even though the Bulgarians preferred canaries.

MONEY experts want to fix money rates so all countries [illegible] free to buy what they want. They promise this would lead a world trade which would bring about full employment and a rising living standard.

This is the way they hope the stabilization fund would work:

1. As each country enters, its money will be fixed at a certain price in relation to gold.

2. Each nation can buy from the fund when the particular foreign currency it needs is difficult to get.

3. If a nation thinks it must "cheapen" its money, it can do so once and only for 10 per cent. The fund can permit a further cut if it decides the cut is essential.

Suppose a money becomes scarce in the fund. American dollars are most likely to do that because many nations will be buying them for reconstruction.

Experts propose the fund apportion the remaining dollars among the other nations. They won't be able to buy here beyond the dollars they get. This could cut our export trade, but perhaps for only a short period because the other nations will continue to sell to us. As we pay our bills a new dollar account will build up.

We wouldn't be draining other countries of gold and running the world into another depression. We have two other ways to keep our trade flowing. We can buy more abroad, perhaps through cutting our tariffs, or we can make some long-term loans abroad.

Experts believe the reason the 19th century saw such an increase in the world's living standard was the fact English financiers placed enough foreign loans to keep world trade brisk. They lost some of the loans, but the nation got rich on the business.

THE reverse of "scarcity" could happen if a nation bought so much abroad it had to pay large sums of money into the fund.

The fund would refuse to obtain any more foreign currencies for any nation which puts 200 per cent of its quota into the fund.

The nation could then take several courses, as the experts see it: Get down to work and sell more merchandise abroad; put high taxes on luxuries its people are buying abroad; get a loan to keep on with necessary buying and at the same time raise its taxes to pay off the loan.

The United States can't belong to the fund unless the senate approves, but the 30's were such a poignant lesson in what happens when other nations can't buy here, it is believed the senate's final decision will be favorable.

Next Stop—Florence

Allies Approach Ancient Art Capitol.

ALLIED forces now are surging forward toward the outskirts of Florence. The next defense line the Germans are expected to hold stubbornly is north of the Tuscany capital.

Florence (Italians call it Firenze) has a normal population of 250,000, less than Genoa, Turin, or Palermo in Sicily. Yet, the city is glamorous because of its [illegible] place in the history of art.

In Florence originated and thereafter flowed to the rest of Europe the outburst of expression which is known as the Renaissance.

Prior to the Renaissance, Florence was donated by Countess Matilda, sovereign of Tuscany, to the Papacy. The Holy Roman emperors disputed the gift and assigned the city to one Guelph of Este; the dispute gave rise to the centuries-long quarrel between the Guelphs, supporters of the emperors, and the Ghibellines, supporters of the Popes. In the 13th century the Florentines consecrated themselves into a republic, but usually the republic existed more on paper than in actuality. The populace, incessantly at loggerheads with the nobles, was organized into all-powerful trade guilds.

In Florence Dante wrote the "Divine Comedy," which established the Tuscan dialect as the standard literary vernacular of Italy. In Florence during the 14th century Petrarch wrote his "Sonnets," and Boccaccio, founder of Italian prose, the "Decameron." Out of Florence came Machiavelli, who wrote the "Prince," and the astronomical research of Galileo. In Florence Savonarola inveighed against the evils of the day until burned at the stake for heresy.

GIOTTO, born in Florence in 1266(?), is sometimes called the father of modern art. He blazed the road away from mosaic art into fresco painting. He had predecessors in Florence, notably Cimabue. The road which Giotto blazed was soon trod by Masaccio, Botticelli, Fra Angelico, Fra Filippo, Verrochio and other masters whose works are among the most dearly prized possessions of many a famous art gallery.

The Florentine masters were discovering and using the laws of perspective, and were developing new painting materials. These men set up schools and workshops to teach their technique to brilliant pupils. In the 15th century the Medici family took over control of the city. The Medicis were devoted patrons of the arts, and under them Renaissance art came to its full flower in Leonardo da Vinci, Michelangelo, and then Raphael (most of whose best work was done in Rome). Most of these men were masters in many fields, including architecture and sculpture.

In the non-graphic arts preeminence was achieved by Brunelleschi, Donatello, della Robbia, Ghilberti, Cellini. The great masters of Venice—Titian, the Bellini, Tintoretta, Giorgione—were on the other hand outstanding only as painters.

During the 16th century Florence began to decline in importance. In 1859 the city threw off the yoke of Austria, and its territory was annexed to the Sardinian kingdom. From 1865 to 1870 Florence was the capital of the kingdom of Italy. The three great repositories of art in Florence are the Pitti Palace, the Uffizi Gallery, and the Academy.

"Bargain" Rejected

By The Associated Press

FORT MORGAN, Col.—In a recent letter to his wife, Lt. Robert Wankelman, B-24 pilot in the Pacific, told how a friend had difficulties buying a grass skirt as a memento. The salesman was the village chief who held title to the native girls who were sold as wives. The airman found the skirt he wanted and offered the chief a 5 pound ($1.60) for it. The chief took the money and gave him the skirt—and the girl who wore it. The souvenir-seeker had a tough time explaining he just wanted the skirt—not a wife.

OPA's Cash Detective

War Is On Against Ration Coupon Counterfeiters.

By JACK STINNETT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON—Armed with a brand-new "weapon," not at all secret, the Office of Price Administration is ready to crack down hard on ration coupon counterfeiters.

The new weapon is money—$50,000 just appropriated by Congress—and Thomas I. Emerson, OPA's enforcement chief, says it can smash the widespread counterfeiting racket.

The $50,000 is to be used to purchase evidence, or, to put it the way OPA prefers, "to purchase commodities for use as evidence."

In laying a trap for counterfeiters of gasoline coupons, for example, an OPA agent or a "planted" confederate can buy up a batch of illicit stamps, spring a quick arrest of the salesman, and then use the coupons as evidence in a court action. The money paid, marked to identify it, also becomes evidence.

In the same way, the trap can be sprung on peddlers of stolen bona fide coupons.

Have Been Handicapped

Until now, OPA has had no funds for use in this way and Emerson says that lack of them was OPA's No. 1 handicap in attempting to smash counterfeiters.

In one case on the west coast, OPA agents made up a pool of $500 from their own pockets to lure the racketeers. It worked, and a sizeable ring was uncovered. The agents ring was uncovered back, but had to wait until the end of the court trial.

That incident and similar ones demonstrate, Emerson says, that $50,000 can make it mighty unpleasant for coupon racketeers.

"I am confident we can lick the counterfeiting racket, now that we have this appropriation," he asserts.

The beauty of the scheme is that most of the money will come back to the government following its use in court. There will be some slips, OPA acknowledges, but it is counting on recovering most of the marked bills. In effect, it will be a kind of "revolving fund."

A Major Arm

Emphasis in the new program will be on wiping out theft and counterfeiting of gasoline coupons, which together are resulting in the loss of about 2,500,000 gallons of gasoline daily to the black market.

But the new fund will be used in other enforcement programs as well. Price panel representatives, having repeatedly warned a merchant against price ceiling violations, will refer such cases to OPA investigators. There again OPA agents will use their new weapon to "purchase commodities for use as evidence."

Production Record

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA—One of the biggest feathers in the cap of American industry is the creation, since 1940, of an entirely new class of "watchmakers" mass-producing precision aircraft instruments.

One of the largest of these groups is at the Philadelphia division of Bendix Aviation corp. where thousands of former beauticians, pianists, seamstresses and butchers were trained in plant-operated schools to perform one operation apiece in the manufacture, for instance, of altitude meters, which contain 120 different parts.

The Philadelphia plant produced equipment valued at more than a million dollars each month. During the past year one month's quota included 175,000 air speed, rate of climb and turn and bank indicators.

Bicycling

By Truman Twill

Our first lady, Eleanor Roosevelt, let us down pretty hard a couple days ago. We wish she hadn't been quite so truthful about her first bicycle ride this year.

When we think about bicycles, we like to imagine bright spokes making a brilliant blur in the sunlight as the rider whisks like the wind up hill and down dale.

We like to think about happy faces with the teeth gleaming in the approved dentifrice smile, devil-may-care stuff, here we go into the bright blue yonder and all that sort of thing.

It is pleasant to dream of wonderfully proportioned legs feather-touching the pedals and sort of inspiring the bike to be on its way, if you know what we mean.

There should be a lot of flying hair and ribbons streaming in the wind. Somewhere in the background should be muscular young men literally spurning the contraption they are straddling, because you just know from the way they look that they could leap off and run 10 times faster if they wanted to.

The landscape against which all this gymnasium-like action and outdoor fun are taking place should be, of course, as breezy as the characters themselves. In the distance should be fresh painted farmhouses and neat barns. The road should wind off into infinity like a ribbon disappearing in a bouquet of roses.

Here and there should be a fleecy cloud, not big enough for a little angel to sit on if you're very, very careful. A couple of swallows should be wheeling in the azure blue, to suggest carefree motion, light-as-air and so on, you know.

That's the way a copy writer would do it for the bicycle people, to make the orders pour in. That's the way to sell bicycles.

But Mrs. Roosevelt apparently isn't interested in selling bicycles. She mounted her trusty pusher, she says, to get over to the "big house" wherever that is—somewhere on the other side of the "woods," according to the story. And then what happened?

Why, she "found the mosquitoes very active and unpleasant companions." Shucks. That's the way it is with the rest of us when we go bicycle riding. Mosquitoes. And perspiration. Mrs. Roosevelt says it was her first bicycle ride of the season, and one will get you two it will be her last one.

Anyone who really has fun up-and-down on a bicycle never gave a second thought to mosquitoes. The mosquitoes couldn't even catch up. We think Mrs. Roosevelt has put back the bicycle business at least five years in its prospects.

When it comes to bicycling, our first lady doesn't take to traveling any better than the rest of us. The next time she goes over to the big house, we hope she drives—or maybe walks with the bike, the mosquitoes and all, she never got there the first time.

So They Say—

Properly to represent the people one must represent them on the highest level to which they can rise instead of descending to the lowest level which the happenings of the moment may record.—President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university.

Those who watch us take off think we are coming back and that we take all the risks, while we think we have all the fun and all they get is stripes—we get the citations.—Maj. Robert Johnson, 27 planes shot down in Europe.

A delineascope projected the small map onto the big drawing board, and Sergeant DeBolt sketched in coast lines, boundaries, rivers, cities and other points. He also washed in the water color paint used to set off the various countries. In addition to showing the invasion points, the map indicated the battle lines in Italy and the Russian front.

Another Marine listened to the radio and jotted down news reports. The lieutenant in charge of the crew filled out the reports with background material from bulletins and articles by such authorities as Hanson Baldwin and George Fielding Eliot, and made a graphic presentation at the staff conference.

Praised by General.

It was the first thorough coverage of the invasion put together on Bougainville, and won praise from General Moore and his staff officers.

Staff Sergeant DeBolt makes his home with his cousin and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Karl L. Reiff of 332 Pearl street. His mother, Mrs. Donna Marie DeBolt, lives in Stockton, Cal. He graduated from Pleasant Township High school in 1941. He had been on the basketball, track, baseball and soccer teams. Before joining the Marine Corps in May, 1942, he worked for a year for the Erie railroad.

In the Marine aviation unit, his regular duties include the making and distribution of maps, and preparation of flight charts for pilots.

His brother, Corporal Marion DeBolt, is in France.

NAZIS MAKE STRONG GOTHIC LINE STAND

By The Associated Press

ROME, July 7 — Lashing out ... counter-attacks of the heavily fortified Gothic line in their first aggressive action in two months, the German defenders of northern Italy have brought the Fifth army's drive toward Livorno (Leghorn), Pisa and Florence almost to a halt, allied headquarters said today.

The Eighth army also measured gains in yards instead of miles. A stiff house-to-house battle continued to rage day and night in the village of Rosignano, where American infantry who have penetrated to within ten airline miles of Livorno were attempting to wade through heavily manned roadblocks.

From the west coast along a sector extending at least 30 miles inland, the enemy struck back at the Americans. At some points the Germans strove to infiltrate and break into newly-gained allied positions and were thrown back only after brisk engagements.

Also along this front enemy infantry and tanks were backed up by increasingly active German artillery, with long range 170-millimeter rifles sending big shells screaming over the lines in a harassing fire against Fifth army supply routes.

East of Rosignano equally strong resistance was encountered in the area of Castellina, at Colle Val D'Elsa and north of Montevarchi. The greatest advance came when American tanks moved up three miles, capturing high ground northwest and northeast of Montemattini. Other Americans fighting alongside the French pushed through fierce opposition along highway No. 2 to a point three miles northeast of Colle Val D'Elsa.

were used to move the injured men up the bank.

The kitchen and baggage cars of the southbound train, reported carrying more than 1,000 soldiers just out of basic training, were burned.

Rescuers worked doggedly early today to free two soldiers trapped in one of the smashed coaches. Doctors gave blood plasma transfusions to one of them, pinned down in the gorge wreckage. Two others who had been trapped were extricated, one of them dead.

Fireman Identified

The fireman, identified at a Jellico hospital as J. W. Tummins of Etowah, died several hours after he was hurled free of the wreckage.

Reporter William Yarbrough of the Knoxville Journal telephoned his father that he counted seven dead when he climbed into the engine room and looked out. He said two more dead were lying in the stream, running two to four feet at the wreck scene.

The engineer, identified by the railroad as John C. Rollins of Etowah, Tenn., was "somewhere beneath his engine," Yarbrough said and the fireman was picked up from the spot to which he was hurled and brought to Jellico hospital.

Pvt. Wallace Lewis of Canton, O., a passenger on one of the cars hurled into the gorge, said, "I saw a big flash, and someone said, 'There's going to be a wreck.' There was. I crawled out of the car, fell into the shallow creek, and then stumbled out."

Identification Slow

Capt. Kilburn Brown, Army public relations officer, said identification of the dead was proceeding slowly. He explained most of the soldiers either had been in their berths at the time of the crash, or were in the wash rooms, preparing for bed. The crash tossed personal belongings together, and in some cases caused loss of identification tags.

Ill Wind From Air Bombs Blows Against Germany

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Hitler's devilishly ingenious robot bombs may be the ill wind which blows some good to a world that is determined to find real peace.

This indiscriminate killing of civilians, with a monster which the Nazi frankenstein can't control in its murders, will go far towards insuring that Germany gets the just punishment she escaped in the last war because the allies got soft-hearted. She'll get the Prussian gangsterism knocked out of her this time.

John Bull's immediate reaction is a fresh boiling up of fierce hatred for Nazidom and its barbarities. One would expect a similar bitterness among the other allies, for Hitler is committing an act which is contrary to civilized practice in warfare—"vengeance fire" his war communique called it yesterday.

Hope of Soft Peace Slim

Thus the Nazi dictator's hope of wangling soft peace terms, and escaping personal retribution, is indeed slim. The London Daily Telegraph sums the thing up succinctly today when it says:

"Flying bombs will not be forgotten when the day comes to settle accounts with Germany. Meanwhile this desultory and indiscriminate fire will drive nobody from his post."

We needn't labor the savagery of this winged death. It's just one of those things to be logged down in Hitler's book of doom for future reference. We should keep straight in our minds, however, the distinciton between civilian deaths which are incidental to the bombing of military objectives in cities, and deliberate civilian murder for the purpose of breaking morale.

England isn't beefing over this fresh frightfulness. The London cockney just hitches up his pants and spits over his shoulder in a gesture of defiance which speaks for the nation. The silence is ominous.

Prime Minister Churchill during his discussion of the robot bomb in the house of commons yesterday made a remark to which observers attach much significance in relation to the allied attitude towards the reich. He said:

"Introduction by the Germans of such a weapon obviously raises some grave questions."

Public Attitude Changes

This has been interpreted generally as meaning that such indiscriminate bombing of civilians will influence the terms imposed on Germany at war's end. If that's what Churchill has in mind, it is indeed of vast importance, for in recent months those people who favor leniency towards the Germans have become decidedly more vocal.

If the allied governments follow the program which we've been led to understand has been laid down, there will be no balm in Gilead for Herr Hitler. There will be absolutely unconditional surrender. There will be no negotiated peace terms, but the Prussian barbarians will take what they can get. There will be occupation of the reich by allied armies for many years. This military-minded nation will get the military rule it admires.

Nazism will be wiped out—lock, stock and barrel. So will Prussian militarism. This will mean that individuals must be removed in one way or another from society. And there are thousands upon thousands of German who are charged specifically with atrocities, many involving wholesale massacres. The penalty for murder in most countries is death or life imprisonment.

SOUNDS REASONABLE

ALBANY, N. Y.—The Appellate Division has ruled that it is not unreasonable for a man accustomed to earning $10,000 a year to turn down a $90-a-week job and still claim his unemployment insurance benefits. Thus, Joseph Croner, of New York City, is entitled to receive payments while he continues his search for a better job than the commercial art offer he spurned.

HOSPITAL CARE

NEW RORK—A total of 458,350,260 patient days of hospital care was given in hospitals in 1943, an increase of 10 per cent over the preceding year, statistics of the American Hospital association disclose.

A Ride with a Wounded Nazi

By HOWELL DODD
Associated Press Artist

SOMEWHERE IN NORMANDY —Riding in an ambulance from battle-zone to the beachhead, and watching the expressions of the wounded men, is bound to give an artist ideas—particularly when one of those men is an enemy.

The sketch at right was prompted by such an experience.

The wounded German (upper left) rode with wonder. He expressed surprise when he was told he would get the same care as an American. He had been told differently by his officers.

On the trip, "Sandy" (lower left) strained to see the country that he had fought over only a few days (it seemed like years) ago. "Red," (upper right) his arm in a cast, was telling how his outfit had held out until heavy artillery could move up to blast the Germans from a ridge. The price he paid was three fingers, plus a broken arm.

"Mac" (right) had been on the receiving end of a heavy mortar shell. He got a broken collar bone and slight chest injuries. As we rode along, Mac said without reluctance:

"I'll be seeing England a hell of a lot sooner than I ever expected to."

1,500 U. S. BOMBERS RAID GERMANY TODAY

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 7—A great fleet of 1,500 American heavy bombers and fighters attacked airplane factories and oil refineries in central Germany this morning and the enemy reported another U. S. force attacking the reich from the south.

American Fortresses and Liberators drove deep into the heart of Germany and dropped thousands of tons of bombs on the Leipzig suburb of Mockau, Lutzendorf and other places.

A big airplane works at Mockau has been hit several times before and the Germans undoubtedly have been striving to rehabilitate it to bolster the steadily dwindling Luftwaffe. The attack was a violent follow-up of a double American blow yesterday at the Kiel naval base and the rocket bomb cradles in the Pas-De-Calais department of France.

The Germans said the force attacking from Italy dropped bombs near the Austria-Hungary border and pushed on over Czechoslovakia into German Silesia. A Vienna airdrome was bombed last night along with oil and rail facilities in northern Italy.

These daylight forays followed the third successive night assault on western Germany by RAF Mosquitos, squadrons of which also braved terrific thunderstorms and attacked railroads from the Normandy battle zone to Lemans, 75 miles to the south.

In one of five heavy bomber attacks on the buzzbomb grounds in the Pas-De-Calais area yesterday—attacks which helped roll up a big total of more than 6,000 sorties—Fortresses and Liberators hit at least eleven bases with direct hits or near misses on vital sections.

But the sirens sounded in London today and flying bombs were falling again in southern England.

MARION CLUBS HEAR TALK ON BASEBALL

Veteran Sports Writer on Kiwanis, Rotary Program.

Al Lang, baseball newspaper writer and former Mayor of St. Petersburg, Fla., was guest speaker at a joint luncheon meeting of Kiwanis and Rotary clubs yesterday noon at Hotel Harding.

Sessions of the two clubs were merged this week on the regular Kiwanis meeting day as the usual Rotary meeting time fell on July 4.

Mr. Lang's talk was made up of anecdotes pertaining to baseball players throughout his 50 years' experience. He talked about the top players and picked an all-time All Star World Series team. As pitchers he picked Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson; catcher, Bill Dickey; first base, Lou Gehrig; second base, Eddie Collins; shortstop, John P. (Honus) Wagner; third base, "Pie" Traynor; left field, Ty Cobb; center field, Tris Speaker and right field, Babe Ruth.

He remarked that Connie Mack, in a recent interview on the radio with Bill Stern, picked exactly the same team except that Mack chose Jimmy Collins for third base. Lang had picked and announced his team more than a year before, and neither man knew of the other's choice.

The speaker rated Wagner as one of the greatest ball players of all time. The most pathetic player of all time was the eccentric left hand pitcher, Rube Waddell, he said. Mr. Lang rated Connie Mack as the most lovable man in baseball. He chose as the greatest ball team the St. Louis Cardinals of two years ago.

Mr. Lang was introduced by Wilson Tway of the Rotary club. Henry Krigbaum, president of Kiwanis, was in charge of the meeting. The Marion Ohio State league team and its manager, Grover Hartley were introduced by Dexter Hazen, program chairman of Rotary and president of the Marion Baseball club.

Adrien Busick, president-elect of Rotary, spoke briefly and introduced the Rotary guests. They were Homer K. Henderson, H. F. Davidson and K. W. Roush. Kiwanis guests were James Dowe of Columbus, Lt. John M. McClelland and Lt. Commander Harry McFarland.

High Power Loudspeaker in Production for Navy

By The United Press

NEW YORK—A new, loudspeaker, resistant to shock, vibration, salt spray and gun blast, and reliable for operation in the fiercest naval battle, is now under construction for the Navy, its manufacturer has announced.

The high-powered unit, constructed principally of sheet steel and moulded plastic, was designed by the Bell Telephone Laboratories and is under production by the Western Electric Co.

With an outside diameter of 12½ inches and a weight of 25 pounds, the speaker has been likened to a salad bowl in shape. It develops a sound pressure of 50 dynes per square centimeter measured at 12 feet from the speaker in open air.

The unit has three principal sections, the manufacturer said: a base with space for a transformer, terminal strip and lead-in cable; a horn, of the folded exponential type, and a magnetic unit fitted with a two-piece permanent magnet and diaphragm.

SOS Signal Carried by British Invention

By International News Service

LONDON—Thousands of British merchant navy lifeboats are fitted with a new signalling mirror capable of flashing SOS signals on a target 10 miles away.

Made of stainless steel, the new helio-signals were developed by the Royal Air force and made available to the British Ministry of War transport.

In the past, British seamen have attempted to attract attention of aircraft and ships by flashing a beam reflected from an ordinary mirror—a difficult business at any distance.

The new British device has a small foresight and a central focus. Two lines on the polished surface insure accuracy.

"We want all ships' lifeboats to carry them," an official of the British Ministry of War transport told International News Service.

Sound is now recorded by magnetism on hair-fine steel wire.

Calvary Church Starts Family Night Program

An attendance of approximately 100 was registered at a family night held Thursday night at Calvary Evangelical church. This was the first of a series of such gatherings which it is hoped will be held once every quarter.

As parents gathered in the church the young people sang hymns under the direction of Rev. Wendell Freshley and Mrs. Freshley. The entire group later joined in singing hymns.

Playtime for children and young people under the direction of Miss Virginia Epley was followed by the Zachman family and the Ben Hinaman family, each group singing its favorite hymn.

The Leadership Education class taught by Mrs. C. R. Beerbower demonstrated, in a garden setting, how the home and church can work together for the Christian nurture of children. This family council was brought to a close by a Scripture reading and prayer by Ed Sprow.

Miss Marjorie Epley gave a humorous reading and Rev. R. W. Faulkner, pastor, told a bedtime story. The Christian-Parent-Teacher fellowship hour introduced pupil, parent and Sunday school teacher as a unit.

Assisting in serving refreshments were members of the Upstreamers class. The family night was planned as an outgrowth of a leadership education course on the subject "The Home and Church Working Together In the Religious Nurture of Children." Members being graduated from the class are Bonnie Wygle, Elizabeth Slack, Marguerite Price, Arthur Zachman, Ed Sprow, Mildred Zachman, Mary K. Taylor, Florence Zachman, Virginia Epley and Marjorie Epley. This group also composed a committee in charge of arranging the evening's program. Family night was sponsored by the Sunday school.

Army Officer Confirms Use of Gas by Japs

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, July 7—A Chinese army spokesman said today Capt. Ralph Thompson of the American chemical warfare intelligence had substantiated Chinese charges that the Japanese had used mustard gas against the defenders of Hengyang.

Thompson has examined personally some of the victims and a detailed report from him now is being awaited, the spokesman declared. He said that when received the report would be communicated to the American and British governments.

In Washington acting Secretary of War Patterson, asked about a dispatch saying an American officer in China had confirmed Chinese claims that the Japanese had used poison gas at Hengyang, said "we have no firm confirmation in the war department on the use of gas there.

In Gen. MacArthur's sphere troops covered by ships and planes landed unopposed on Manim island and set up artillery to blast at Japs holding Namber airfield three miles distant on Noemfoor island. The operation flanked enemy troops defending the airstrip, which when captured will give the Americans three airfields on Noemfoor, 800 miles from the Philippines.

Adm. Chester Nimitz disclosed that five more enemy ships were sunk in the carrier task force assault on the Bonin islands this week. This raised the Japanese losses since the Marianas operation started June 10 to 58 ships sunk, 84 probably sunk or damaged and 535 planes destroyed.

Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten ... told his troops Lt. Gen. Mutaguchi had confessed failure in the northeast India invasion and admitted his 15th Japanese army was in desperate straits. The Japanese are now either in retreat or trapped.

miners since the fire broke out.

Workmen toiled throughout the night to move the bulky drilling equipment over wooded slopes above the place the men are imprisoned.

Joseph Chadwick, assistant superintendent of the mine rescue department of the Ohio division of mines, estimated it would require five days for men working 'round-the-clock to force the big bit through the roof of the entry in which the men are imprisoned.

Matthew Speicher, personnel manager of the Powhatan Mining Co., said it would require no more than two days for the smaller drill to bite through the earth separating the trapped men and the drillers.

John Owens, president of district No. 6, United Mine Workers, said there was hope that the men still were alive if they were able to properly block off the area in which they were trapped.

Thomas McFarlane, a state mine inspector, early today, however, declared "in my opinion there is no hope for any of those men."

The larger drill was loaned by the Hanna Coal Co. which had a disastrous fire and explosion at its Willow Grove mine March 16, 1940, in which 73 men lost their lives. It is being brought here from St. Clairsville.

Two million tons of naval auxiliary vessels and other supporting craft were completed in the United States last year.

BEWARE OF PIN-WORMS

Wartime living conditions may be the cause of spreading Pin-Worm infection. Scientific reports in many communities have shown at least one-third of the examined children and grown-ups to be victims of Pin-Worms—often without knowing what was wrong!

Watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms in your child or yourself: the tormenting, embarrassing rectal itch, the uneasy stomach, bed-wetting, nervous fidgeting, finicky appetite.

New Discovery Hailed By Doctors

After centuries of distress caused by Pin-Worms, a new and highly effective way to deal with this stubborn pest has recently been discovered. This scientific discovery, hailed by medical authorities, is a remarkable drug (gentian violet). It is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm treatment developed by the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, America's leading specialists in worm medicines. P-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they act in a special way to destroy the creatures.

So don't take chances with Pin-Worms. At the first warning, see, ask your druggist for P-W and follow the directions.

Dear Friends:

A production rich with great music comes to the Palace screen starting Sunday, it is the MGM triumph "SONG OF RUSSIA" starring Robert Taylor and Susan Peters ("The Random Harvest" girl).

Glorious Tschaikowsky melodies flood the screen — modern Russian composers too — and Jerome Kern, E. R. Yarburg's hit composition written especially for this picture, titled "And Russia Is Her Name."

The great portrayals, the fine story, above all the sheer beauty of the music — make

Sincerely, The Palace Management.

Marion Cubs Win 4 to 2 in Opening Home Series with Springfield

Art Packe Sets Giants Down with Seven Hits.

By BOB COCHERL
Marion Star Sports Writer

The Marion Cubs bounced back into the win column last night by handing another defeat on the rookies of the Springfield Giants by the score of 4 to 2 at Lincoln park.

Art Packe was the winning pitcher, setting the Giants down with seven safeties. It was his third victory in six starts.

Marion wasted no time in getting started as they scored three runs in the first inning. Smith [illegible] the first man up, grounded out Bolick, clapped a double to left. Jeski walked and went to third on Granzig's right field single. Materia [illegible] Morneweg was then safe on an error. Simpson attempted double play which grounded out and Devine, batting, caught Granzig at second, Jeski for Lisztwan, struck out.

Vickery followed up with a single to left putting Morneweg and Broukal on third. Broukal slapped one have but one regular outfielder, over second base which took a looked good as they won the had bounce and went for three opener from Springfield with bases, scoring Morneweg and three pitchers in the game. Besides Art Packe on the mound, Broukal. Bailey ended the inning by striking out.

Marion threatened again in the fourth as Broukal, with one man out, walked and went to third on Bailey's single to right. This was short-lived as the next two men were out on a popper to short and a ground out second to first.

Score in Seventh

In the seventh the Cubs scored their last run as Packe hit safely to right field and went to second on Pace's sacrifice. Smith flied out to centerfield and Jeski, getting his only hit of the game, singled to right, scoring Packe. Granzig then flied out to center.

Springfield threatened in the first inning as Dernier and Carenbauer both singled. Marion put this uprising down quickly as Walker grounded into a fast double play, Granzig to Broukal to Jeski.

In the third inning, with two men out, Dernier again singled. Carenbauer then smacked a hot one through Broukal which went into right field, Dernier going to third. Carenbauer took second as the play was at third. Mel Walker who had hit into a double play in the first inning, rapped out a triple to right center field scoring Dernier and Carenbauer. Gutt then grounded to first ending the inning.

It looked as though the Giants might start another rally in the seventh as the first man up, Troy Deviney, walked and advanced on a single by Charley Sproull, last of five Milwaukee hurlers.

Louisville's threat to overtake the Redbirds was ended, temporarily at least, by Joe Mack's two bagger, scoring George Stumpf with the winning Columbus run in the ninth inning.

Letty Bill Seinsoth yielded 10 scattered hits and collected three in four trips to the plate in Toledo's shellacking of Indianapolis.

Kansas City not only halted its losing string at 13 straight but achieved a triple play in doing so. It happened in the third inning when, with Miller pitcher Harold Wonson on second base, and Jim Cookson on first, Mike Blazo bounced into a double play retiring himself and Cookson. Wonson, reaching third, continued toward the dugout under the impression there were three out. Gene Corbett, Blues first baseman, tossed the ball to third baseman Babe Glunt, who tagged Wonson.

Patents for radio detecting and ranging were granted as far back as 1929, when British and American scientists were measuring the height of what they called the ionosphere.

FORMER ATHLETIC DIRECTOR AT B-G SEEKS STATE POST

Paul E. Landis Now State Supervisor of Physical Education.

[illegible] the last in a series of articles on [illegible] candidates for the position of state athletic commissioner [illegible]

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
INS Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., July 7—Aspiring to the Ohio high school athletic commissionership, vacated by the recent death of H. R. Townsend, is Paul E. Landis, former Bowling Green State university athletic director and now supervisor of physical education, recreation and safety.

An astute follower of Ohio schoolboy sports, Landis bases his bid for the commissioner's job on a "lifetime of activity in sports." Probably no Ohioan, with the exception of the late commissioner himself, has been closer identified with Buckeye sports over the last 20 years than Landis. From the viewpoint of an unbiased observer, and in fairness to Landis, it must be pointed out that he packs more athletic administrative experience than any other Ohioan yet to declare himself a candidate for the $6,500 post.

Three-Sport Athlete

A three-sport high school and college star, Landis launched his coaching career in 1923 when he became a Portsmouth, Va., high school mentor. In that capacity he handled football, basketball, baseball and track for three years in addition to directing physical education in all Portsmouth schools.

In 1925 he became athletic director and head coach at Bowling Green State university with the rank of assistant professor. For 17 years he remained at Bowling Green State university with the rank of assistant professor. For 17 years he remained at Bowling Green, gaining widespread recognition in Buckeye college and high school athletics.

In his first few years at Bowling Green he was jack of all trades, handling the administrative phase as well as coaching football, basketball, baseball and track. As the college grew he gave more and more time to the executive matters and delegated coaching duties to assistants.

Landis received his bachelor of arts degree from Oberlin college, his master's degree from Columbia university and is now working on his doctor's degree at Ohio State.

Changed Jobs in 1942

He gave up his Bowling Green job in 1942 to assume his present position in state government.

Like every other aspirant to the commissionership, Landis realizes the big job ahead of the successor to Townsend. "I've never met a more perfect gentleman who had the personality and tact to handle every type of situation," Landis said in a tribute to Townsend. "His will be big shoes to fill for whoever may be his successor."

Although his work in athletics for the most part has been in collegiate circles, Landis gained statewide attention for his management of Northwestern Ohio district basketball, baseball and track runoffs.

Ivan E. Lake, sports editor of the Bowling Green Sentinel-Tribune and long-time friend of Landis, has this to say about the former Falcon athletic chieftain:

"Although Landis's long suit hasn't been track, he put the sport on a well managed basis here long ago."

BREWERS WIN TWO GAMES FROM ST. PAUL

By The Associated Press

If the 9,532 Milwaukee customers who turned out for the Brewer-St. Paul double-header last night were a bit on the sleepy side this morning, it's not exactly surprising.

For it was nigh onto midnight before the Brews polished off their foe in the 12th inning of a three hour and 35 minute nightcap. This they did, 7 to 6, after taking the seven-inning opener, 5-1.

The twin victories gave Casey Stengel's crew an additional half-game margin over second place Columbus, which downed Louisville, 7 to 6, and now trails the leaders by five full games.

In the American association's other two contests fourth place Toledo thumped cellar-dwelling Indianapolis 14 to 3 and Kansas City defeated Minneapolis 5 to 3.

Milwaukee's win in the bed-time thriller was accomplished on Dick Culler's single with two out and two men on base. The blow drove in Jim Pruett, who had

Boston and Cincinnati Current Hot Clubs in Major Leagues

By The Associated Press

Boston is the current hot club of the American league and Cincinnati is running a fever temperature in the National, but there isn't any doubt today about the temperature of the Brooklyn Dodgers. It's a sub-zero minus 10 for one of the longest losing streaks of the 1944 season.

The Flatbush Flock hasn't won since leaving the banks of the Gowanus, and need only four more setbacks in the week-end series with Pittsburgh to tie the all-time Brooklyn record of 14 losses that toted Burleigh Grimes' Warriors in 1937. They have thrown in the towel on the Cubs' 13-game drop of early season.

Bucky Walters chalked up his 14th victory of the season last night when he burned Cincinnati to a 10-4 triumph at the expense of rookie Ralph Branca. It was the ninth Redleg win in the last 10 starts and Walters' sixth in a row. Ray Mueller of Cincy set a new consecutive game catching record at 134.

Joe Cronin's Red Sox continued to stick on the heels of the St. Louis Browns in the American by taking a 13-3 walkover from Detroit.

Bob Muncrief protected the Brownies' 2½-game margin by shutting out Philadelphia with four hits, 5-0, with the help of Vern Stephens' 3-run homer.

Hank Borowy of the Yankees whitewashed Cleveland on a four-hitter, 4-0, to decision Mel Harder with Mike Milosevich and Mike Garbark snowing the way.

Mickey Haefner of Washington turned back Chicago with a 5-0 edge over Orval Grove.

Bill Voiselle took a fall out of the St. Louis Cardinals as he pitched the New York Giants to a 10-1 verdict that snapped a 7-game Card win streak.

Chicago Cubs climbed back out of the cellar at Boston's expense, 11-6.

Bob Elliott led Pittsburgh to a 6-5 nod over the Phillies as Nick Strincevich took a win over Ken Raffensberger.

REDS LOOKING FOR MORE EASY PICKING

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 7—Cincinnati's suddenly valient Reds take on some more eastern opposition today in the hope that it will be as soft as the Brooklyn Dodgers who currently are in their worst slump in years.

The Dodgers chose Ray Mueller night last night to drop their tenth straight game and gave the Reds a clean sweep of the four-game series. The score, fattened by a seven-run second inning, was 10 to 4, and Bucky Walters hung up his 14th win of the year and sixth consecutive in his drive for 30 games.

With 636 persons also claiming to be named Mueller looking on for nothing, Ray Mueller caught his 134th consecutive game for the Reds, breaking a record set in 1909 by George Gibson of the Pirates. For his diligence, spread over two seasons, Mueller received a $500 war bond from the club and a tie clasp from his team mates.

Outside of the second inning, the ball game itself was no great shakes to watch. Six hits, including a triple by Eric Tipton and a double by Chuck Aleno, three intentional passes, and an error by Mickey Owen at the plate produced the seven runs and gave Walters a comfortable lead for the rest of the game.

Brooklyn showed some life in the third, scoring three runs on an infield single, a force play, a walk, another single, and Augie Galan's triple.

Gee Walker made the most of the ineffectiveness of the Brooklyn pitchers, getting four singles in five tries.

HITTING NOW BIG WORRY FOR TRIBE

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, July 7 — Manager Lou Boudreau was nursing another worry today as his Cleveland Indians opened a four-game series with the second place Boston Red Sox.

Failure of his front-line pitchers to produce has been the Tribe pilot's main concern almost since the start of the campaign, but now it's the hitters who are going into a slump.

Although they lead the league in batting, the Indians haven't scored a run in the last 14 innings. Atley Donald of the Yankees turned them back with a seven-hitter Wednesday and yesterday Hank Borowy delivered a four-hit shutout as the erstwhile Bronx Bombers triumphed 4 to 0.

As for yesterday's game with the Yankees, Borowy allowed only two infield singles until Boudreau and Roy Cullenbine lined successive singles to center in the ninth inning.

Mel Harder hurled a creditable eight-hit game despite the handicap of a lame right foot and with luck and some fielding support probably wouldn't have allowed more than one run. However, that would have been one too many with Borowy turning in one of the top performances of his career.

The Yanks picked up a pair of tallies in the opening inning when Mike Milosevich drove a double past Cullenbine. George Stirnweiss beat out a bunt for a single and Milosevich scored when Keltner threw wildly to first. Stirnweiss then stole second, moved to third on a fly ball and came home on Johnny Lindell's infield out.

A scratch hit by Mike Garbark and a triple by Borowy added another marker for the Yanks in the fourth. They picked up their final run in the fifth when Harder walked Garbark with the bases filled.

Attorney Shows Heels at North Randall Oval

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 7—Practically all of the three-year-old pacers performing on the grand circuit this season are convinced that Attorney knows how to lay down the law, to-wit: thou shalt not pass on the home stretch.

The Wilkes Farms' brown son of Volomite sped to straight heat victory again yesterday at the North Randall oval, with Eddie Havens twice second in the $3,390 championship stallion stake.

Driver Art Blackwell guided the fleet colt to a three-length margin in the first mile and although he had only half a length edge in the second whirl, he was going away at the finish.

The leading money winner of the juvenile pacers in 1943 lowered his record to 2:03● in the initial heat. It was Attorney's second triumph in as many grand circuit starts this season. Last week he won the $2,484 Matron stake in straight heats.

Cardington Flier Missing in Action

CARDINGTON, July 7—Irwin A. Holt received word last Wednesday night from the War department that his son, Sgt. Alfred I. Holt, 20, top-turret gunner on B-17 Flying Fortress, has been missing in action over France since June 14.

He is believed to have been on his seventh mission. Mrs. Earl Sellers of Bucyrus received a letter from her brother, stating that he had completed six missions. Sgt. Holt is Morrow county's first European invasion casualty to be reported by the War department.

Sgt. Holt enlisted in the Air Corps in Jan. 1943, shortly before his 19th birthday. He left for overseas duty in April of this year and has been stationed at a base in the British Isles.

He received his training at Amarillo field in Texas, at the Boeing Aircraft School in Seattle, Wash., at Alexandria, La., and at Las Vegas, Nev.

Pvt. Kenneth Holt, a brother, is stationed with an Army engineers unit in the British Isles.

OILS AMONG STRONG ISSUES

Specialties Also in Demand But Many Leaders Face Continued Selling.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 7—Selective strength persisted for oils and specialties in today's stock market although many leaders still had to contend with light selling based on the idea a correction of the lengthy upswing had not been completed.

Generally good war news again served as an argument against really urgent liquidation while the outlook for peace-time business was sufficiently bright to attract modest bids for scattered issues. There was the usual trimming of accounts for week-end protection and some customers stood aside to await more light on the domestic political scene.

Dealings turned rather sluggish after a moderately active opening and turnover was around a low for the past two weeks. Trends were well mixed near the fourth hour although 7-year highs were plentiful.

PRICES HOLD UP UNDER PRESSURE

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 7—Longs took their profit in the wheat pit today but all futures offerings were absorbed quickly and prices continued to work upward in one of the most bullish grain trade sessions in recent months. The strength of wheat extended to other grains.

News from Washington caused the price advances and the trade showed an inclination to ignore increasingly bearish crop and harvest reports.

Short covering, commission house and mill buying resulted from the announcement the Commodity Credit Corporation would buy wheat here at six cents over the loan, indications the purchases may be a part of a price supporting program as well as an effort to replenish feed stocks, and reports the wheat loan rate may be increased about seven cents a bushel.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

"Oh, of course, you must go up to see Hugh and Lee Chow," I told Harry Underwood. "Hugh asked to see Lillian as soon as possible after her arrival. Of course he didn't know you were coming, but can't you imagine his disappointment if you didn't go up?"

The big man gave me a sardonic grin, and I remembered that while he and Dicky gave Hugh respect and admiration, there is nothing stronger in the emotions of either Lillian's husband or mine toward the "Man of Mystery," as Harry used to call him.

Rejoinder

"I don't think he'll be biting his finger nails if I don't appear," Harry said. "But if he's expecting Lill, we ought not to keep him waiting any longer. The old dear will need his beauty sleep, and who are we that we should deprive him of it?"

I felt a stir of resentment as irrational as it was sudden. Hugh was a fugitive, a hidden, hunted thing. Why should Harry gibe at him. — Harry, who had often known what it was to be the fox fleeing from the hounds?

Fortunately, Lillian's husband had turned his eyes away from me and toward his wife as he uttered his jape, and I was able to control my telltale face as Dicky dubs it, before I answered him. But I was uncomfortably conscious that Lillian, who has conjugated my moods and tenses for many years, comprehended my resent.

"They've been sleeping most of the day and night," I said, making my voice casual. "Boys, will one of you go down to the secret chamber, tell Uncle Hugh that Aunt Lillian and Uncle Harry are here, and ask him how soon he will be ready to receive them?"

Boys Hesitate

The boys hesitated for the fraction of a second, and I knew that some secret signal of their own was passing between them.

Then Roderick rose from his chair.

"I'll go right up, Aunt Madge," he said, and went out of the room in swinging march step.

Harry Underwood looked quizzically at Junior.

"Quite a plethora of uncles you have, my lad," he commented. "Don't you ever get 'em mixed up?"

Something odd, indefinite, flashed into my young son's eyes as he looked at the big man whom he adores.

"No, sir," he said. "That never can happen. I've got 'em all catalogued and filed away."

I wondered if it were my "imagination working overtime," or if there really was a hint of tension in our mental atmosphere for a flashing instant. But the next moment Lillian rose with decision.

Must Finish Dress

"Come on, Madge," she said, "back to your room. There's that dress to finish, and I want to ask you a hundred questions about the set-up here while you're working. Harry, you know there isn't any real reason why I should go up now and take Hugh's pulse and Lee Chow's temperature. Make my excuses prettily, and tell both the darlings that I'll see them in the morning. And don't stay up there the rest of the night, or morning either. You'll want to buss Madge good-bye, you know."

"That I do!" the big man grinned. "I'll give her a smack that will make her wish she'd met me before she did the Dicky bird. And Life of my Life, I fully approve your decision. I wouldn't have dared suggest that you postpone your call until tomorrow, but I'm glad you've decided to spare yourself further fatigue tonight."

"Run along with you," Lillian said with a gamin grin at him, "and save your breath. You'll need it."

I paused at the door for a word of caution to Junior.

"Take your heavy coat and Roderick's down with you," I told him. "Uncle Hugh may want you to stay outside while he talks to Uncle Harry, and that passage is cold."

"Always obey your mother," the big man gibed; "but I'll warrant you that any hush-hush talky talk tonight won't be a long session."

He was mistaken, however, for Lillian and I were surprised a few minutes later, while I was stitching the mourning costume she had settled, by the appearance of both boys at my bedroom door.

"Uncle Hugh said for us to come back in fifteen minutes," Roderick reported. He said it was too cold for us to wait outside that long, but that Uncle Harry would be all ready to come back at the end of the quarter hour."

"Fifteen minutes!" I repeated. "That's going to delay the start of my journey back."

"I could have told you there'd be a jam session," Lillian said coolly. "Hugh has your father's complex about shocking women with details of rough work. But he's probably spilling the works to Harry."

YOUR HEALTH

Danger from Dogs

War affects many aspects of life indirectly and apparently remotely. Judging from the number of dogs that almost hourly go past my windows either in packs or in pairs or singly, nearly always rushing excitedly and apparently aimlessly along the street, I can understand that the routine of life of man's best friend has been seriously upset.

Meat rationing hit him, owners turn their pets loose to forage for the food they can't spare themselves and the hungry dog on the loose goes after rabbits, squirrels, chipmunks, and, besides, they associate too much with each other. All this makes an ideal situation for the development of rabies, or hydrophobia, and is, of course, a direct danger to man, especially in the summer months.

I have a letter from a Pennsylvania town which prompted me to call attention to the matter.

"Since a clean up of stray dogs is going on, and several dogs have shown rabies, I suggest a discussion of the proper treatment in suspected cases. Doctors do not seem to be alert to the danger.

"My own little boy died suddenly last fall. He was bitten by a neighbor's St. Bernard through the lip. This was in June and the doctor said anti-rabic treatment was not necessary. The boy became suddenly sick in November with convulsions and fever and died 24 hours later. I have since heard of another case, a lady who died very suddenly and the coroner said it was the result of a dog bite on the lip received six months before."

Rabies affects all mammals and cases have been reported from the bite of skunks, wolves, cats and squirrels, but the responsibility of the spread of the disease to man rests mainly on dogs. Dogs are very susceptible to infection, man very slightly susceptible. If 10 humans are bitten by a provedly mad dog, and none of them receive immunizing treatments, only one, according to statistics, will on the average develop hydrophobia.

The virus enters through the bite or any break in the skin (there are cases where the infection occurred in a cut on the hand when the owner petted a sick dog and the dog licked the cut on the hand). It travels along the nerve paths to the brain. That is why it usually takes so long to produce symptoms. If it travelled by blood vessels the incubation period would be shorter.

In the dog the dumb form of rabies occurs in only about 20 per cent of cases. And these are often the more dangerous kind because the dog is not spotted as a mad dog and may be approached and handled when suddenly it will snap and the damage is done. The "furious" form in which the dog is excited and restless and finally becomes very agitated and goes on a snapping and biting spree occurs in 80 per cent of instances. Frequently, however, the two forms merge.

The practical lessons are that any dog that changes disposition suddenly in hot weather is potentially dangerous. If it bites a human it should be chained up until it dies or is proved non-rabid. The diagnosis of rabies can be made by examining the dog's brain, but the diagnosis is not always easy even by experts and it is better to let the disease run its course . . . that the signs will be most evident.

Any bite by an animal provedly rabid should call for Pasteur inoculations. While gossip almost will have it that the pain is dreadful, there is no proof of this and the dangers of letting the disease run are great. The first thing to be done with any dog bite is to sterilize or cauterize the wound with alcohol or iodine and to attempt to kill the virus at the source.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. M.—How does one test the urine for sugar. My mother has diabetes and it is most inconvenient to go to a doctor from where I live.

Answer: All diabetics or a near relative should learn how to test the urine for sugar at home. It is very simple. Any druggist will supply you with Benedict's solution, a test tube, an alcohol lamp and a medicine dropper. Put a teaspoonful of Benedict's solution in the test tube, hold it over the flame of the lamp until it comes to a boil, then drop a few drops of urine into it and boil again. If sugar is present it will cause a green, yellow or red cloudy deposit. If none is present the solution will remain blue.

Gravity alone moves oil through some pipe lines.

STUDENTS HONOR NUN

By International News Service

PITTSBURGH — Hundreds of grateful students and former pupils of Depaul Institute for the Deaf, Pittsburgh, recently paid tribute to a nun whose efforts have made their lives happier and more useful. They attended a solemn high mass in the institute's chapel marking the golden jubilee of Sister Marie Antonia McLinden as a member of the Sisters of Charity. She has helped to rehabilitate more than 1,500 deaf-mute boys and girls through special education.

RECOGNITION URGED

By International News Service

ALLENTOWN, Pa.—A special uniform, button or arm band insignia for American farm boys was suggested by Secretary of Agriculture Miles Horst at a recent meeting of the Allentown Industrial Club. He maintained such recognition would stimulate the public to appreciate "the real farm boy, who is criticized for not being in uniform."
